WASHINGTON - West Germany's leading news magazine, Stern, is the first periodical in the world to publish what may well be the real explanation for one suppressed part of the investigation of President Kennedy's death. Stern's senior editor Henri Nannen came to Washington to investigate the assassination, and talked with members of the Warren Commission. He is convinced that the Warren report is accurate and that no other assassin aside from Lee Harvey Oswald was involved.

But Stern explains the suppression of the autopsy report on the grounds that President Kennedy was suffering from Addison's disease and his family did not want it known. This would have been revealed in the autopsy report.

"The Kennedys had reason to keep silent," says Stern. "A sick Kennedy was killed in Dallas. . . Kennedy had Addison's disease. This is not totally unknown; Theodore Sorenson mentioned it in his 'Kennedy' biography.

"There is no medical reason why a man afflicted with this disease should not be President (since the illness can be controlled like diabetes), but politically Kennedy's illness could become dangerous. Addison's illness - it sounds sinister. Few Americans know of it and its symptoms.

"For the Kennedys there was no doubt of the murderer - Lee Harvey Oswald." Continues Stern: "Already in 1964 Robert Kennedy told Egon Vacek, 'Don't you think I would do everything to get the real murderer if I had any doubts?

"But the Kennedys went one step further: In the detailed autopsy-report of the Addison condition, which would mean that the illness and its degree was to be kept a secret. This intent of secrecy seems to be shown also through the fact that the Kennedys hid the Xrays, even from the Warren Commission. . . Dr. A. J. Mc-Sweeney confirms that Xrays could have revealed the Addison's disease.

"This would also explain the lack of date on the Warren Commission autopsy report. This report was in effect changed so that it contained no mention of the President's

"To the quite evident question of why the Kennedys should refuse to admit that the President was not killed by a bullet in his back. . . not one of the speculators has been able to give an answer.

"The suppression of the Addison's disease in the autopsy report explains also the attitude of the doctor who requested the inclusion in the Warren Report of the fact that he destroyed his notes. . . otherwise hundreds of people would have been faced with lying under oath, which was impossible.

Note - When the late President Kennedy was a candidate for the Democratic nomination, the report persisted that he was suffering from Addison's disease. However this was emphatically denied by the Kennedy family. Later many physicians pointed out that the swelling of the late President's face - he became much fuller-faced after entering the White House - was the result of cortisone, which he had been taking in heavy doses to check Addison's disease. Doctors state that cortisone has several side effects -- among them a puffy face, and over-confidence. Sacred Music Battle Constitution Hall, over which a famous controversy was waged when the Daughters of the American Revolution barred singer Marian Anderson, is now the scene of a different kind of controversy.

This time the Baptist Ministers Conference, many of its members Negroes, is boycotting Constitution Hall because Duke Ellington, famed Negro musician, is playing there tonight (Dec. 5) and the Baptists claim his music is not "sacred."

The Duke is playing under the auspices of the Interdenominational Church Ushers Association, which is raising money for the Children's Hospital, Big Brothers and the Ionia Whipper Home. However, elder Negro leaders among the Baptists have risen up in wrath against a Duke Eilington Concert which claims to be religious.

"He is a nightclub showman," they contend. Younger churchmen, both Baptists and of other denominations, claim the boycott against Ellington is because older church leaders are unwilling to meet the problems of the day.

Controversy Over Senator Fulbright

By JAMES MARLOW AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) - Controversy hovers over Sen. J.W. Fulbright like an umbrella. Some he creates himself. Some of it lies in wait for him.

He went to Stockholm Sunday to deliver a lecture and was met at the airport by a bunch of hard-nosed Swedish newsmen who quizzed him on foreign affairs and civil rights. It was hardly an illuminating session.

The Arkansas Democrat was widely known before he arrived, not only as chairman of the Senate's Foreign Relations Committee but as one of President tics on American involvement in Viet Nam and in the Dominican Republic's crisis of 1965.

The Swedes even knew his record on civil rights. The Swedish press had described him as a "liberal on foreign policy who is strongly conservative or the civil rights issue."

Fulbright refused to answer most questions on Viet Nam but on civil rights said "there has been great misunderstanding abroad, here and elsewhere, on this very matter, which is an internal matter of the United

But, if one of the Swedish newsmen had been up on recent American history, he could have pointed out that, while Arkansas had no riots, in 1957 it provided the first great civil rights crisis.

This was a test between the federal government and Southern states in carrying out the Supreme Court's 1954 decision banning public school segregation. In 1957 Gov Orval Faubus used National Guardsmen to keep Negro children from entering Central High School.

Then President Dwight D.

And Fulbright has voted consistently against all the Civil Rights Acts passed in this century: in 1957, 1960, 1964 and Long ago - in 1946 - in an

The death of Albert H. Morehead, former bridge editor of the New York Times, is a great loss to bridge. He was a dear friend to all the Jacobys and we could write forever about his many good qualities. We will devote only this week's series to a discussion of his great book, 'Morehead on Bidding.'

In this book Morehead describes modern bidding and gives the play of many interest-ing hands. Today's hand illustrates that the response of two in a lower suit shows at least 10 or 11 high card points and that South can rebid two notrump to show a sound hand of no-trump pattern.

South winds the second heart and plays the king and another club. When West shows out South can only count eight tricks and he can't afford to give up a club because East will be able to give his partner three heart tricks.

South makes the hand by abandoning clubs and leading a heart from dummy. If West doesn't take his heart tricks right away South will be able to concede a club trick to East, therefore West cashes his hearts.

South discards two spades and a diamond from his hand and a club and diamond from dummy. East lets two spades go. West leads the queen of spades. South takes with dummy's ace and leads a spade to his king.

East must discard a club or diamond at this point and either discard will be fatal. The club discard will give dummy two clubs. A diamond discard gives declarer an extra diamond trick.

HIGHLIGHTS AND SIDELIGHTS FROM YOUR STATE CAPITOL

By Jim Davidson Anderson Calls For Consumer Fraud Law

Missouri Attorney General Norman Anderson will ask the next session of the Legislature to adopt a consumer fraud law which would give his office power to deal with complaints.

In a speech last week to the Missouri Assn. of Consumers, Anderson stated that his office unofficially receives about 20 bona fide consumer fraud complaints each week.

The proposed law would be directed at such disreputable operations as land-fraud schemes, the home improvements racket, high-pressure doorbell salesmen, and the "bait-and-switch" techniques, where retailers advertise merchandise which is not available when the interested customer arrives.

Consumers can protect themselves, too, Anderson said, by making certain that terms are spelled out in writing, by knowing their dealers and by getting estimates on repairs in writing and in advance of any committment.

The proposed legislation would be similar to a successful law passed in Illinois, and would allow the attorney general's office to conduct formal investigations, seek injunctions to stop deceptive sales practices, and seek restitution in behalf of defrauded buyers

Later, in his office, Anderson explained that some aspects of fraudulent loan practices may come under such a proposed law. Shortly after taking office two years ago, Anderson was confronted with an Illinois loan company which was enticing Missourians into East St. Louis, Ill., for the purpose of executing second mortgages, a practice which is prohibited in Missouri.

The advertising, however, presented the firm as being located in Missouri, and Anderson's office worked with Illinois officials to break up the fraudulent practice. The proposed legislation would cover many other areas where misleading advertising is used to distort all pertinent elements of loan practices, Anderson said.

C. W. Culley, state finance director, illustrated the basic problem showing that of the 64 people defrauded in the East St. Louis loan scheme, all admitted that they would have borrowed the money anyway, even knowing that the scheme was fraudulent, because they needed the money.

"I don't think the General Assembly can ever legislate to protect the individual from himself," Culley said. Therefore, he emphasized the need to educate prospective buyers and borrowers as to deceptive sales and advertising practices so they can avoid the fraud. In most cases where excessive lending charges are found, if a credit corporation advertises a seven per cent interest rate, that is all that they charge. The additional charges come from insurance payments and carrying charges which are tacked onto the contract, he explained.

Such a practice is not illegal, Culley said, but these charges should not be held over the heads of borrowers as conditions for lending money, even though they're as much a benefit to the consumer as they are to the lender. He pointed out that if enough borrowers refused to pay these added charges, the loan corporations could not force them to do it. Fraudulent credit practices, as well as deceptive sales practices, hurt the honest and responsible merchants and credit corporations in the state, as well as the consumers,

Eroded Cavern Found Under State Capitol

The basement floor of the State Capitol building has been in bad shape for many years, according to John D. Paulus, director of planning and construction, but the extent of the deterioration was not discovered until recently.

A sagging portion of the floor was removed revealing a large eroded cavern, which apparently had existed for several years because of a broken drain pipe which was pouring water under the floor. Paulus assured that there was no danger to the foundation or any supporting elements of the Capitol, and that refilling and repairs would be completed by the first of January.

State Remodels GOP Quarters

Republican offices in the Missouri Capitol are receiving a long overdue remodeling in preparation for the next session of the Legislature, John D. Paulus, director of planning and construction stated recently.

The Republicans now occupy two rooms and one suite on the second floor of the Capitol, and partitions for individual offices are being added, along with the remodeling and a new coat of

During the idle months when the members of the Legislature are not in Jefferson City, one of the rooms has been used as an enrolling room for bills and documents, but this also will be turned back to the GOP when the session opens.

Former House Speaker Thomas D. Graham (D-Jefferson City) and other Democrats in the Legislature have long urged that the Republican rooms be remodeled and possibly more space be found for them.

Toronto Cutting Fancy Capers

By DICK COUCH Associated Press Sports Writer

Montreal and Toronto are cutting fancy capers again in the National Hockey League

But, while everyone expected the Canadiens to climb into contention for the league lead, no one figured the team they'd be trying to catch would be the Maple Leafs.

The Canadiens, triggered by Claude Larose's two goals, whipped New York 3-1 Sunday night, completing a weekend sweep that has put them over the .500 mark for the first time in three weeks.

Despite five victories in their last seven games, however, the Canadiens remain six points off the pace set by Toronto. The torrid Maple Leafs capped a four-point weekend by blasting Boston 8-3 Sunday night and now have won six of their last seven starts.

Toronto lead's second-place Chicago, a 4-1 winner over Detroit Sunday night by one point in the tight NHL race.

Boston suffered a crippling blow when rookie defenseman Bobby Orr sprained some ligaments in his left knee. The 18year-old defenseman, who had scored six goals, will be sidelined for at least three weeks. (Advertisement)

"How would you like to make some records?" he was asked. "Are you out of your mind?" said the blunt Vallee. "Some days I can't even talk, much less sing." He was told about the "Winchester Cathedral" record, and he said he would listen to it before making up his mind. Vallee didn't care for the record at first, but he admitted its dropping nostalgia grows on the listener. By the time Vallee had returned to Hollywood, four record companies wanted him to make his own rendition of "Winchester Cathedral," well as other tunes. He chose Viva Records, a subsidiary of Dot.

"I don't think you'll be able to give away the records," he muttered, "but let's go ahead."

Last week he recorded the hit tune, along with some others of his own era: "The Whiffenpoof, Song," "Sweetheart of Sigma Chi," "Who," plus a version of "My Blue Heaven" that "would make Gene Austin turn over in his grave, if he were dead."

Now a pink-cheeked 65, Vallee expects no rebirth of his singing fame. He plans to continue pursuing his acting career, and may turn up on "Batman" soon.
